DRAFT Proposed Government Special Envoy on Freedom of Opinion and Expression Discussion Paper (Elements for expansion)

Why focus on Freedom of Opinion and Expression (FOE)?

“Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers.”

Universal Declaration of Human Rights, Article 19

Everyone shall have the right to freedom of expression; this right shall include freedom to seek, receive and impart information and ideas of all kinds, regardless of frontiers, either orally, in writing or in print, in the form of art, or through any other media of his choice.

International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR), Article 19

Freedom of opinion and expression are human rights enshrined both in the UDHR and the ICCPR. They are widely recognised as key enabling rights that support the vindication of other human rights and are a cornerstone of democracy. Now more than ever, threats to these rights in online and offline spaces are growing¹.

Establishing a Government Envoy focussing on FOE, would provide enhanced capacity for high-level engagement on established Irish human rights priorities, across regional and multilateral architecture. These priorities have been outlined in “The Global Island: Ireland’s Foreign Policy for a Changing World” and include:

- Civil society space
- Human Rights Defenders
- Gender equality
- Human rights of LGBTIQ+ persons

Potential activities

1. Represent Ireland at relevant high level events (including Irish-organised side-events) in multilateral fora including:
 - Human Rights Council
 - UN General Assembly 3rd Committee
 - Commission on the Status of Women
 - OSCE Human Dimension
 - Council of Europe
 - Freedom Online Coalition (and other related coalitions in the future)

2. Lead Ireland's advocacy initiatives around key annual events: World Press Freedom Day, International Women's Day; IDAHOT day; PRIDE month; Human Rights Defenders Day etc.
3. Undertake 2-3 country visits p.a. to promote in-country advocacy work.
4. Collaborate with UN/regional/bilateral partners such as:
 - The EU's Special Representative for Human Rights, Eamon Gilmore and FRA Director Michael O'Flaherty
 - Existing networks of bilateral Human Rights Envoys and Ambassadors
 - The UN High Commissioner for Human Rights and her Office
 - Relevant UN Special Procedure mandate holders e.g. on Freedom of Opinion and Expression, Freedom of Peaceful Assembly and Association, Human Rights Defenders, Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity

[Further consideration to be given to how the Envoy role fits into DFA architecture, resourcing, reporting, coordination, on statements etc]
